Abstract

In this research, our claim is that the concepts presented by Fakhr Razi somehow prove the intrinsic motion and this meaning is significantly close to the substantial motion of Mulla Sadra. Although Fakhr Razi did not provide a proof of intrinsic motion, some evidence - such as the analytical knowledge of the ratio of motion to motion - enables us to consider Fakhr's words as proof of intrinsic motion. However, after we examined the similarities and differences between intrinsic motion and the substantial motion, the conclusion was reached that Fakhr Razi's theory of has gone as far as proving that essence is the cause of motion, but it has not been able to prove the "motion of essence", Because Fakhr Razi did not have the necessary foundations to prove the substantial motion. This research contributes to a deeper understanding of the concepts of intrinsic motion and the substantial motion and deepens the process of proving the substantial motion.

key words: substantial motion; intrinsic motion; Fakhr Razi; Mulla Sadra; the cause of motion.
